Eliza says.....

After GCSE's I chose to study subject that I enjoyed and that would be useful beyond education. At 6th form I was encouraged to research courses and apply to a number of Universities. I chose to study at Queen Mary as I wanted to live in London. I had an amazing time there, got thoroughly involved in University life and had a great experience!

I graduated in July 2012 with a First Class degree and started my first job in Truro. I work as an Educational Recruitment Consultant at jjFox and after 2 years I am still loving my job and love living in Truro!

do what you enjoy...

My advice about what to do after GCSE's is to think about what you enjoy. Whilst it's important to think about how useful something's going to be, it's vital that you choose something you're interested in. I spent 5 years in education after school and couldn't have done that and given it my all if it wasn't something I enjoyed.
